FILM MATTERS

"The San Bernardino Film Office helped us swiftly execute a permit for a last minute shoot. Without their responsiveness, and helpfulness, our production wouldn't have been possible. I hope to film again in the area, and would recommend it, not only for the gorgeous natural backdrops, but the positive experience of working with the San Bernardino Film Office."

- Kate Clark, Photo Producer, ASTR the Label

"Working with the San Bernardino Film Office was a dream. We've never shot in that part of California and Marsha and Monique were so instrumental in moving our photo shoot forward. Not only did they help with the basic permitting information, they also helped us find the perfect street location for one pivotal scene that was proving difficult to find. I hope more clients choose to shoot in this area because I'd work with them again in a heartbeat."

- Natalia Paez, Producer, Shades of Grey

Urban areas including Amboy, CA formed the basis of the town Radiator Springs in Pixar's Block Buster Movie "Cars" (2006). Even The Roy's Motel sign served as inspiration for the glowing symbol of Flo's Café.
